Dear Residents,

January always provides a fresh start and for most the drive to start the new year off right by setting goals and aspirations. Typically I like to set a goal for myself to try something new each year. A few years ago we went surfing, last year we started a vegetable garden in our backyard, this year I’m still toying around with some ideas. One goal I have for my son is that he enjoys the fine arts and learns to play an instrument. Our feature family, the Johnstons, also share a love of music, with Brent currently the choir director for the Whitefish Bay High School. Enjoy reading their story and setting your own goals for 2018!

Cheers,

Village Hall Renovation Update: Groundbreaking

The Village officially broke ground at the Village Hall site on Thursday, November 16 at 9am.

Nearly a year ago, the Whitefish Bay Building Committee was formed to explore all options for improving the Village Hall and Police Department. Currently, the Police Department lacks the space necessary for safe operations, the building can no longer accommodate everyday department needs, and the space lacks the connectivity options required for modern technology. The subcommittee was tasked with finding the most economical plan to best position the Village for the future. A 2.88 million dollar plan to renovate and expand the facility was approved by the Village Board in 2017. Specifically, the project will improve efficiency and expand operations while repurposing portions of the existing building. The project includes a building addition for police vehicle storage and a redesign of the police and administrative office space. Within the building, a new sprinkler system will be added to meet current fire code. New electrical, HVAC, plumbing, and IT upgrades will also be completed. Lastly, the Village Hall Board Room and entrance lobbies will be updated to make them safer, more inviting and ADA accessible.

The Building Committee worked with Bray Architects to develop plans and designs. Phasing is scheduled to minimize disruptions to residents and normal day-to-day operations have been moved to the Department of Public Works building at 155 W. Fairmount Ave.

For more information on the upcoming project, please visit the Village of Whitefish Bay website, www.wfbvillage.org.

“Carson, can you tell me how much nutmeg I need?” “I don’t know, Dad.”
“The recipe is right there on the iPad.”
“I can’t read it.” Pause. “Wait, I’ll be right back.”

A minute later he ran back into the kitchen, colored overlays in hand, placed them on top of the iPad, and shouted, “1/4 teaspoon!”

This was the crystallizing moment for my husband and I. For years we wondered why our son needed to rest at the end of every school day (but not on weekends or vacations). Why it took him 1-1/2 hours to do 20 minutes of homework. Why he was fidgety and unfocused in school. Why his handwriting was atrocious. We’d gotten him to study skills class. We’d taken him to handwriting classes. The answer to our puzzle. I scheduled an appointment with an Irlen diagnostician in Milwaukee.

Irlen syndrome, commonly known as Irlen syndrome, is a visual processing disorder, which means the brain has trouble processing the information that the eyes are sending it. The theory is that certain wavelengths of light cause visual distortions in the person’s environment. One boy told me, “It’s like the light gets in your eyes.”

The more I researched Irlen syndrome, the more convinced I was that this was the answer to our puzzle. I scheduled an appointment with an Irlen diagnostician in Illinois. The screening process was easy: lots of questions and some simple visual tests to determine his symptoms, then testing different colored overlays to find which color best mitigated them.

Brain scans done on Irlen syndrome patients show that when they are trying to read, without any color overlay or filter, many more areas of their brain are working than should be. Once they use the appropriate color, the brain quiets down, using only the necessary areas to process the material. This helps explain why headaches and dizziness, along with sleepiness and nauseousness Carson experienced, are common symptoms of Irlen syndrome; the brain is working overtime.

Irlen syndrome is a spectrum disorder, so symptoms can be mild to severe. They may appear after a few minutes (as with Carson), or after reading a few chapters. And because everyone’s brain is different, everyone’s symptoms are different, though there tend to be commonalities. Does a person avoid reading? When they do read, is reading slow or choppy? Do they misread words? Do they get a headache when reading? Does reading make them tired?

Because Irlen syndrome effected Carson’s entire environment, we took him back to get a pair of spectral filters. These are precisely diagnosed colored lenses that he wears all the time. If you were to meet him, it looks like he’s wearing sunglasses with a dark blue tint. If I put on his glasses, the world looks darker and bluer. For Him, the world looks as it should; bright, with the whole range of colors, just as we see them. His distortions are gone; the lines in brick buildings don’t wiggle anymore; people’s faces are clear, not fuzzy; his depth perception has improved; and he can see a whole paragraph of print on a page clearly.

After seeing the huge change in Carson’s life, I decided to get certified as an Irlen screener. I learned that 12-14% of the general population, and up to 46% of those with reading problems have Irlen Syndrome but don’t know it. The fix is so simple, and relatively inexpensive, but the impact on a person’s life is so huge.

I’ve worked with a dozen of clients in the last two years, both kids and adults, not only in Whitefish Bay, but all around the state. The teachers and staff in the Whitefish Bay Middle School, have been super helpful with Carson and the other kids who have been screened for Irlen. Cumberland, Richards, St. Monica’s and Holy Family have all begun to accommodate Irlen kids, too. My hope is that as more and more people get screened, colored overlays and spectral filters will become as commonplace in schools as pencils and paper.

To read more about Irlen syndrome, check out the website irlen.com. If you want to contact me to discuss symptoms and see if a screening seems appropriate, email me at irlen.wi@gmail.com, or call me at 248-890-2341.

Fire Extinguisher 101:
Everything You Need (Want) To Know

We often receive calls and emails to our five firehouses inquiring about all sorts of questions about fire extinguishers; so we figured we would take a moment to give you some basics.

Buying an extinguisher can be overwhelming. There are typically many to choose from; each bearing a different label, weight, size and style...so which one should you choose for at home?

Generally speaking, the extinguisher you choose for in the home should be a “multi-purpose” or “class ABC”. This means that it is designed to be used on a multitude of fire types, from basic combustibles (paper, cloth, wood, plastic) to flammable liquids (gasoline, grease, and oil), to electrically energized equipment. The extinguisher should be large enough to put out a small fire, but not so heavy that it is difficult for you or your family to handle. The extinguisher should also carry the label of an independent testing laboratory such as Underwriters Labs (UL).

Additionally, you should always take the time to familiarize yourself with the user instructions, the parts, and the operation prior to mounting the extinguisher. Likewise, ensure your family and friends who may need to use it are too. The extinguisher should then be installed close to an exit in an area where you can always keep your eyes on the fire and your back to the exit so that you can make an easy escape if the fire cannot be controlled. If the room you are in fills with smoke, exit immediately.

Most importantly, KNOW WHEN TO GO. Fire extinguishers are one element of a fire response plan, but the primary element is safe escape. Therefore, ensuring your home has a home escape plan, practicing that plan and checking to be sure smoke alarms are installed and in working order on every level of the home should be your priority.

Extinguishers should be used when fires are confined to a small area, such as a wastebasket, and are not growing. Moreover, it is important to be sure everyone else has exited the building safely, the fire department has been, or is being called; and the room is not filled with smoke.

Finally, if you make the determination to use an extinguisher, follow these important steps using the acronym PASS.

P – Pull the pin. Hold the extinguisher with the nozzle pointing away from you and release the locking mechanism.
A – Aim low. Point the extinguisher at the base of the fire.
S – Squeeze the lever slowly and evenly.
S – Sweep the nozzle slowly from side to side.

North Shore Fire/Rescue offers free extinguisher training for businesses and groups utilizing an indoor fire extinguisher trainer. To learn more about this training and other services offered by North Shore Fire/Rescue, visit our website, www.nsfire.org.

Music often brings people together whether for a concert, dancing at a wedding, or singing a lullaby to a baby falling asleep. For Brent and Nina Johnston a love of music also brought them together as a couple when they were performers in the opera L’ormindo. As individuals music has always been a huge part of both Brent and Nina’s lives, with Brent receiving his bachelors in Music Education from UW-Milwaukee and then his masters degree in Educational Leadership from Cardinal Stritch University, and Nina receiving her bachelors degree in Music from UW-Milwaukee. In 2006 the two met when their love of music led both of them to perform in an opera and a romance began from there. They wed in 2008 and have been supporting each others musical ambitions since then, even moving back to Whitefish Bay for Brent to pursue the position as choral director for Whitefish Bay High School.

As a graduate of Whitefish Bay High School, in 2001, Brent always wanted to come back to teach at his alma mater. “I loved my time as a student in the Whitefish Bay school system, and hope to create that same experience for our students today. My goal is to continue adding students to the choir program and help them enjoy all aspects of music, but it takes community support as well,” said Brent. While he has been busy building up the program this past year, the community can aid in this by attending events and supporting the program financially. There are a number of upcoming concerts and events that the choir will perform. They can be found at Brent’s choir website under calendar located at https://brentjohnston7.wixsite.com/wfbhschoir.

While choir keeps Brent tied in with music, Nina has been busy building a voice studio in the Milwaukee area. She offers voice lessons and her students compete in various statewide and national events. The studio also is committed to philanthropic causes and in May will holding their bi-annual concert, Beans and Belting. The concert benefits VSA Wisconsin, a non-profit

We’d like to thank Sarah Fetterley of Shorewest for bringing you this month’s cover story.
It’s said that if you do what you love, then you’ll never work another day in your life. This couldn’t ring truer for Julia and Matt Kaminecki, dog lovers and perfect owners for Bay View Bark, a Smart Doggy Day Care facility in Bay View.

After years of working as a kennel attendant, Julia brought her skills to the Animal Care Manager role at Elmbrook Humane Society where she was responsible for the health and accommodations of adoptable and abandoned dogs, cats, and small animals. This is where she began her dog training career as well, teaching classes for new owners of recently adopted dogs and puppies. As an inspector for the City of Milwaukee Department of Neighborhood Services, Julia investigated dog bite cases and inspected pet stores, grooming shops and doggy day cares around the area. She also spent many years as a kennel attendant and a dog trainer. “I love being around dogs and believe that my degree in Psychology also furthered my understanding of canine behavior and the basic mechanisms of positive reinforcement training methods that we incorporate everyday at Bay View Bark,” said Julia.

They opened Bay View Bark six years ago as a boutique style doggy day care also offering grooming and classes. The business grew rapidly over the years and in 2016 they relocated to a new facility allowing Julia and Matt to design their dream play yards, boarding areas and training spaces from scratch. Their business is broken down into four main areas:

1. Daily doggy day care: The focus is to offer smaller groups with a one-on-one positive method training session for each dog, and lots of time for supervised socialization with other dogs.

2. Stay & Play Overnight Care: For their overnight guests each dog has its own private guest room with smooth walls, tempered glass front doors, and an orthopedic bed with warm fleece blankets. Staff is onsite throughout the evening for both the dog’s safety and owner’s peace of mind.

3. Compassionate Grooming Services: By offering a calm and quiet grooming space, they provide a full line of services for dogs of all breeds and sizes. The focus has always been on quality, not quantity.

4. Smart Dog and Smarty Pants Puppy Training Classes: Teaching basic obedience and house manners.

While the facility is located in the Bay View area of Milwaukee, Julia and Matthew have made Whitefish Bay their home with their two children, Eva (3) and Lucas (1), and of course they have two dogs of their own! Twice a month Bay View Park opens its doors for public tours and Julia and Matt would love to show their new facility to fellow dog owners. For more information you can visit their website at www.bayviewbark.com or call them at 414.763.1304.

Hard-to-Kill HOUSEPLANTS
By Emma Riehl

Here’s the dirt: no matter your skill level with outdoor gardening, indoor plants can downright difficult to keep alive. Air conditioning, sunlight, dehumidifiers and nosy pets are elements that play a role in the survival rating of your chosen species of potted plant. Sure, there are plenty of plants out there that will thrive in the exact conditions of your home, but they may be tricky to find and, most importantly, keep alive. Here are some species of plants that, frankly, you couldn’t kill if you tried.

Moth Orchid

These beauties are prime examples of the ideal houseplant. They’re colorful, easy to contain, and thrive in drought-like environments. You’re actually more likely to kill a moth orchid from overwatering than under-watering. Perfect, right? Water the plant only when the bark or moss at the base of the plant is dry to the touch. Orchids like indirect sunlight and normal room temperatures. If your plant stops flowering, cut the bloom spike off at the base and it’ll keep flowering for years or even decades to come (no, seriously).

Croton Plant

Croton plants are non-flowering, but you won’t even miss the blooms thanks to the vibrant colors of this species’ leaves. In bright, almost neon shades of green, red and orange, these plants can be seen from across the whole house. If you’re looking to liven up a dull living space or complement the outdoor foliage, this plant is for you. Crotons only need water when their soil is dry to the touch, so aim for watering them once per week. They need a lot of light, so try and position them in a sunny space.

Begonia

Begonias burst into delicate, gorgeous blooms that come in just about every color and they are very low maintenance when it comes to light and water. The only rule of thumb when it comes to these flowering plants is to not overpot them. Choose a pot that will fit them snugly and only transfer to a larger pot once the roots fill the current one. Place your begonia in medium light and try and water it once per week.

Bonus: the next three plants will actually thrive in rooms that are air conditioned with less-than-ideal light conditions, meaning they make great office plants.

Neon Pothos

This bright green, leafy plant livens up any white or neutrally colored office. The plant delicately cascades over its small pot, serving as lively yet subtle workspace décor. Neon pothos prefer medium to low light and only need water once per week.

Peace Lily

The peace lily will bring a tropical feel to your otherwise drab office. Its lush, large leaves and soft white blooms will offer some tranquil ambiance to any space. Peace lilies are ideal for cubicles or relatively dim offices because they prefer low light levels. Better yet, you only have to water them once per month. Lastly, it’s important to keep these away from your home office if you have a dog or cat, as the leaves are poisonous to pets.

Dracaena

If you’ve ever wanted a tree in your office, the dracaena plant is for you. Dracaenas grow tall and flower regularly. This regal plant is ideal for corner placement and has a sleek, professional look. The dracaena is a bit pickier with light, however, so you’ll want to position it in a spot that gets a medium amount of light. Water your dracaena weekly for best blooming frequency.

8 Signs That It’s Time to Reconsider Your Home

It’s human nature to want to settle and plant roots. But sometimes family milestones or a new perspective on life triggers the need for a move. While moving can be a big undertaking, it can also be an exciting time of new possibilities and adventure. How do you know when it’s time to make a change? Here are 8 signs consider.

Things Are Getting Tight
Perhaps your family is growing, the kids are getting bigger, or you’re tired of waiting for the bathroom. Upsize to a home with more bathrooms, bedrooms, or a family room so you can entertain more comfortably.

Ready for an Upgrade
Congratulations! You just got a great promotion and your financial prospects are improving. It may be time to move to a home with more updates or a neighborhood that you enjoy.

Time to Simplify
Maybe smaller is the answer. The kids are off to college. You aren’t using half the rooms in your house, and you just need a cozy place to call home. Consider unlocking the equity in your home and spend more time traveling.

Commute is Driving You Crazy
Long drives to and from work are energy zappers. The average American spends over 200 hours a year commuting to and from work. What would you do if had an extra hundred hours a year to do something you enjoy?

Tired of Maintaining Your Home
You’re tired of raking leaves, cleaning the gutters, shoveling snow, cutting the grass, and painting the house. Leave all the chores to someone else. A condominium takes the headache out of homeownership.

Downtown or The Lake is Calling You
Milwaukee is an exciting city, and the energy of downtown continues to get more interesting. The art museum, great restaurants, the lake front, and music festivals are right outside your front door.

Get Closer to Family
We often say that home is where your family resides. Being close to aging parents or grandchildren gives peace of mind and strengthens family bonds.

A Warmer Weather Destination Awaits
There’s nothing better than feeling warm sunshine on your face. How awesome it would be to experience that every day. If you’re one of the lucky ones that have found the right home in the right spot. Enjoy!

Holiday shoppers still have time to purchase Historic Whitefish Bay: A Celebration of Architecture and Character. The book costs $20 at the Library, $5 off the retail price, and buyers can get this book and the Historic Preservation Commission’s two earlier books, Images of Whitefish Bay and Chronicles of Whitefish Bay, for the special price of $50 for the three-book set.

For a village of not quite 15,000 residents and a tad over two-square-miles in area, Whitefish Bay has generated a lot of history and been home to numerous colorful characters. Among them:

• The village trustee who absconded with a satchel full of stolen cash, never to be seen again.
• The niece of Capt. Frederick Pabst who tattled about her mother’s sensational affair with a much younger man so she could get her share of the family fortune.
• The business titan with the wild teenage daughter whose goings-on became a topic of gossip columnist and radio commentator Walter Winchell.
• The high school valedictorian who had the deputy director of the FBI convicted for, among other crimes, plotting to kidnap her baby for ransom.
• The athlete who set national records in three sports – speed skating, skiing, and cycling – and is now a billionaire.
• The youth who sought fame and fortune in Hollywood where he produced one of the worst comedies in TV history, followed by one of the most successful ever.
• The Whitefish Bay surgeon deployed to the Korean War who was the inspiration for a character in M*A*S*H, the movie and TV show.
• The beer baron who died tragically in a plane crash, and whose ghost was believed to have haunted his former home.

These and other anecdotes of the Bay’s colorful past are told in Historic Whitefish Bay, written in celebration of the Bay’s 125th anniversary of incorporation in 1892. More than 2,000 historic homes are identified in the book, all of which could qualify for 25% income tax credits. Your home could be one of them.

Combined Risk of Radon Exposure and Smoking

Submitted by Sanja Miljevic, RN, BSN

After smoking, indoor radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer. According to the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), radon is responsible for about 21,000 lung cancer deaths every year. Smoking combined with radon exposure poses additional lifetime lung cancer risk.

To start the year off healthy, do it from the ground up and test your home for radon. Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas that is present in the ground and can enter homes through their foundations. It forms from the decay of radioactive elements which are found at varied levels in soil and rock around the base and under a home. Levels are usually highest in the basement during the winter, when windows and doors that would otherwise help vent the gas are kept closed.

That is why January is Radon Action Month.

No area of the country is free from radon risk. Radon levels are easily measured with a short-term test kit that you can get from the North Shore Health Department. The kit is placed in the lowest livable area of your home and remains in place for 2-3 days to measure the level of radon in your home.

The EPA recommends re-testing if levels are ≥ 4pCi/L. If results are high after your second test, your home may require mitigation.

Please contact the Health Department at 414-371-2980 if you need more information on radon testing, mitigation, or to purchase a test kit. Other helpful websites include http://www.epa.gov/radon/ and https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/radon/radon-measurements.htm

Recipes Kids Can Make With Snow
By Chelsea Scott

No matter how we feel about snow, it’s part of winter. So why not make the best of it? Making snowmen, forts and snowballs is great when the snow is dense, wet and good for packing. But what to do with the white stuff when it’s floating down softly in big, fluffy flakes? Sit out a bowl, collect as much as you can, call the kids over and make these recipes. Note: All recipes yield 4 servings.

Classic Snow Ice Cream
Ingredients:
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons white sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
- 4 cups clean snow

Combine the first three ingredients with a whisk. Stir in the snow and serve.

Variations:
Add rainbow sprinkles for a fun twist. Pour over a drizzle of maple syrup for smoky sweetness.

Make it vegan by substituting almond or coconut milk for the dairy milk and using maple syrup instead of sugar.

Sugar on Snow
Parents’ help required
Ingredients:
- 1 cup pure maple syrup
- 4 cups clean, packed snow

Add the syrup to a sauce pot and heat, on medium, to 234° using a candy thermometer. Remove pot from the heat and allow it to cool slightly. Pack snow into bowls. Pour syrup over snow. It should sit on top and cling to a fork or wooden stick like taffy.

Snow Cones
Ingredients:
- 4 cups clean snow
- 1/2 cup syrup- any flavor

Pack snow into cups or bowls and pour the syrup on top. Maple syrup or pancake fruit syrups work well for the recipe, but you could also use flavored beverage syrups in vanilla, caramel or hazelnut.

Variation:
To make the snow cone extra creamy, drizzle over sweetened condensed milk.

“Snow-cicles”
Ingredients:
- 4 cups clean snow
- ¼-1/2 cup fruit puree (like strawberry, blueberry or mango)

Stir snow and puree together. Pack into popsicle molds and freeze until solid.

Drowned Snow
Ingredients:
- 2 cups clean snow, packed into 4 balls
- 4 cups prepared hot chocolate
- Whipped cream

Place snowballs into 4 coffee mugs. Top with hot chocolate and garnish with whipped cream. It’s a hot and cold treat!

Lemon Lime Slushy
Ingredients:
- 4 cups clean snow
- 4 cups lemon lime soda

Pack snow into 4 glasses. Top with soda and enjoy with a straw.

Get Out and Sled
Compiled by Julia Jaegersberg
There is not much that is more daunting than tackling a major grocery trip, by oneself, with little ones in tow. However, if you find yourself in this challenging, but not altogether unfortunate situation, take heart! A few simple tips will help you face the challenge and come out on the other side triumphant, pantry-stocked, and feeling pretty darn proud of yourself.

Make Your List According to Your Travel Route: For maximum efficiency, which is essential when shopping with littles, make your grocery list according to the layout of the grocery store. Not only will you pick up all the things you need, but you will avoid the sanity-testing dynamics of walking back and forth for items you missed or having to return to the store a second time!

Add a Kid-Friendly, Quick Meal: Regardless of what time you go to the store, you WILL return with hungry children. So, add to your grocery list a meal solution that is: 1.) instant (think premade sandwiches in the deli section) 2.) novel (think super hero snack crackers) and 3.) easy to serve and clean (think veggie tray). Pair this hunger solution with a video for a special “movie meal” while you put away groceries. Your kids will feel like they hit the jackpot and so will you!

Carefully Consider Cart Seating: Your solution to who walks and who occupies the cart has potentially large ramifications. Consider this for success: Wear an infant in a carrier. Strap the toddler in the cart. Train your school-aged children to “touch cart.” This means that they choose (or are assigned) a spot on the cart and must touch the cart at all times unless you specifically ask a child to pick an item off the shelf. When a child is old enough, they could even learn to push an additional cart with littles inside while the cart you are pushing is used for groceries or vice versa.

TEAM unloading! – After you indulge in a bit of rejoicing over what felt like the completion of an Olympic feat, sober yourself. You still have to unload and put away groceries! This can be a great time to build team work. Little ones can place bags from the car into a wagon, pull the wagon up to the door, and take out groceries from the bags once inside. Older children can put groceries away. If this scenario is overwhelming or simply impractical, give yourself a break. Utilize the “movie meal” solution. You can then accomplish the task quickly and easily without the potential mishaps like a broken jar of salsa dropped by your two-year-old… eek!

Patience, Practice and Perspective: Grocery trips with littles can be such good training ground for self-control and the charity of good manners, seriously! Patience, and practice will eventually yield great gains in this area. In addition, if things go well, people may remark about your “sweet kids”! Others around you will be inspired, and your family will be highly encouraged. If the trip is disastrous, well, remember that the best memories often involve some kind of embarrassing mishap.

Lastly, don’t forget to reward YOURSELF! Indulge in that cup of coffee, a few minutes of a favorite activity, or a starry-eyed gaze at the ceiling….You just accomplished an incredible feat. Don your “Super Mom” or “Super Dad” cape. You certainly deserve it!
